Call at this office for the account book, which was lost on the West Glover road.

Mr. King and wife, who have been summer guests at R. S. Twombly's for some years past, have arrived. They always find a cordial welcome here.

Barron & Hamblet secured the services of four new men to work on their block in the past week. The roof is on and the work is progressing finely.

All persons interested in the formation of a local Fish and Game League, are requested to meet at the office of W. W. Miles next Friday night at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. A. B. Mathewson, her daughter Lilla, and granddaughter, spent the Sabbath here. We understand that the family is soon to move to Malden, Mass. Miss Lilla remains as teacher in Lyndon Institute for the present.

Haying is progressing satisfactorily and there is no general complaint in regard to the crop. The weather has been very favorable in this vicinity the present season for the growth of crops.

The Peerless Co. have been painting their house which is occupied by Mr. Cooper. They seem to act on the principle that repairs and paint are more profitable than rot and destruction.

C. W. Tenney gets the lumber for the new hotel, the dimension stuff coming from Canada. The coal and lumber business has kept him busy since he built his sheds and promises well for the future.

E. H. Stone has finished the job of moving the American House buildings and has put them up in a manner very acceptable to the managers. He goes to Newport to move a large building, to return here later to do other jobs.

The Island Pond people are asking to rent a part of the power at the Clyde works to light that place. This is a perfectly feasible thing, and some arrangement ought to be made which would be advantageous to that village and this.

Fred H. Pillsbury has taken the agency for the Yost typewriter, one of the very best machines made, and he would be pleased to show it to any party who is thinking of buying a typewriter. One of the machines can be seen in this office.

The entertainment given by Miss Hinds and others on Tuesday evening last, was well attended and much enjoyed. The program was lengthy and varied, calling out talent in different directions, but every part was performed satisfactorily.

The village trustees are removing sand and gravel from the railroad dump at the Salisbury brook culvert and putting it into the highway on Main street. If the mud material on that street can be buried it will be a great advantage to the road.

L. M. Clement presents this office with one of his photographs of the Summer School. He succeeded in getting an almost perfect likeness of nearly every face in the group, and this, of course, means that the picture in the aggregate is handsome. Mr. Clement is very successful in his outdoor pictures.

Mrs. S. M. Cheney of Stanstead is occupying her cottage at Silver Cove. The Kimball cottage has been completed. It is a two-story, ten room cottage, the largest at the Cove. Several other parties are expected later. This is becoming quite a popular resort, and will be more so when the cottages already planned are completed.

Charles Roberts of Lowell, Mass., is here looking up his old birthplace, and trying to find old acquaintances. He was born in the house now owned by Wm. Colliston, July 22, 1825—just 70 years ago—and is here to celebrate the anniversary of his birth, after an absence of 50 years. He expresses much pleasure in visiting his old town and is delighted with the scenery here.

Ernest Gonzenbach, an electrician, is here and will commence wiring houses for the electric lights. It will be a good thing to get this sort of work done early, "to avoid the rush." Mr. Buzzell and his help at Clyde are using his new steam drill on the ledges in the water course, etc., with much success. The people interested in the big job ought to go out and see what is being done.

On circus day a High street man, known thereabouts as Comrade Dan, removed the nut from his buggy wheel, lest a wagon thief the thing should steal. Unmindful of the missing nut, next day he hitched his nag in the "one horse shay" and started out at reckless speed, hard clinging to the foaming steed. Alas! the wheel came off, the shay capsized, and Dan was dumped and bad surprised. Next time when trap for wagon thief is set, he'll be more mindful of himself, you bet.

Complaint is made that there is considerable thieving being done about the upper section of this village. A few nights ago the Mossman grist-mill was broken into and a sum of money taken from the money drawer. The burglars secured access to the mill through one of the office windows. In some manner the dog, which is kept in the mill nights, was hypnotized and kept out of the office until the door could be closed against him. The front part of the money drawer was bored out so that they could reach the contents. The people who live near there heard the dog barking about 2 o'clock in the morning.

A school director in a neighboring town desires that the MONITOR answer the following question: Is it a wise thing for a town, after having adopted a certain series of school books, to purchase an outfit of books of an outside party, who has gathered them up from those distributed among school directors? That depends. If a contract has been made with the publishers it should be kept in letter and spirit. If the contract is not made, it would be wise and just to inform the publishers what has been done, or what is contemplated, that he may not be misled in regard to the time when book purchases will begin, and the number of books which the town will naturally use. If this does not fully answer the question, apply the common rules of honesty to it.

The village district trustees have selected the following school books, which will be used in the schools here for the next five years:

Civics—Conant's Vermont, Tuttle & Co.

Writing Books—Normal Course, Silver, Burdette & Co.

Orville Drown of Washington, D.C., who is on for a short vacation, made this office a call on Friday last. His home formerly was in this town, but he drifted away a few years before the war, going to St. Johnsbury. When Co. A of the 11th Vt. was formed he enlisted and went to the front. In the unfortunate affair at Weldon Station he was wounded. The Rebs. supposed him to be unable to march and did not take him off with the prisoners. During the night he managed to get into the Union lines, and though badly shot in the arm, his wound, without doubt, saved him from death in Andersonville prison, where so many of that company died. Mr. Drown has been in the War Department as clerk since the war, his long service proving his efficiency.

The trustees will soon issue a schedule of rates for the electric lights which are to be used in this village. The price is based on the Swanton, Vt., scale, which was said to be the lowest in the country when established. The following is a partial list of rates: Each light in stores, $3; in store cellar or upper room, $2; each light in barber shop or water closet, $1.50; first light in hotels, $3; each additional and each sleeping room, $2; each light in public halls, $2; each light in churches, $1; first light in private residences, living room or hall, $3.00; first light in sleeping room, pantry or bath room, $1.50; each light in cellar, barn or shed, $1. Meters can be used by those who prefer them, by paying 10 per cent yearly on their cost. Meter users will be required to pay $10 per annum for their lights, and an additional of 1/2 of one cent an hour for each 16 candle power lamp used when their lights exceed a cost of $10. The trustees will furnish the first set of incandescent lamps—the kind used indoors—and will supply lamps afterwards at cost; they will pay one-half of the expense of wiring houses, if the work is done previous to December 1st, next. The rates are very low and must be satisfactory to all.

Mr. Editor.—One day last week I attended Cole's circus which exhibited in Barton, and would like to comment a little on the character of the audience present. During the performance a boy was shouting "Cigars, cigars; gentlemen can smoke in any part of this tent." He certainly used the word "gentlemen" appropriately, for the men present were gentlemanly enough to know that it would not be gentlemanly to smoke in such a crowd where there were more women and children than men. It speaks well for the manliness of the men and boys of Vermont, when such a crowd of men and boys refrain from smoking in such a place. I have been in all parts of the United States, but had never before been in a circus, where smoking was allowed, without being suffocated with smoke; in many places where notices are up forbidding smoking many will disregard the notice. If there is any place where one expects to see some of the rougher men and boys it is at the circus, and yet, that afternoon I saw only one man and one young man smoking. This is worthy of mention, as it shows an innate refinement, which no city training brings about. I think it is largely due to the fact that there are no drinking saloons in the town. If there were you would have a rowdy element. You are certainly to be congratulated if prohibition has riden you of that, for rowdiness is one of the greatest curses of modern civilization.
